Exedrin headache #13 for Coach McElroy: Richie Aquilina.

The 1968 season will present a formidable challenge for Coach Jim McElroy and his Terrier Baseball Squad. Not only will the team remain in the Knickerbocker Conference, but it will also compete in the very tough Metropolitan Conference. However there is a nucleus for a fine performance from the team, and every member feels that a dual championship is a distinct possibility.

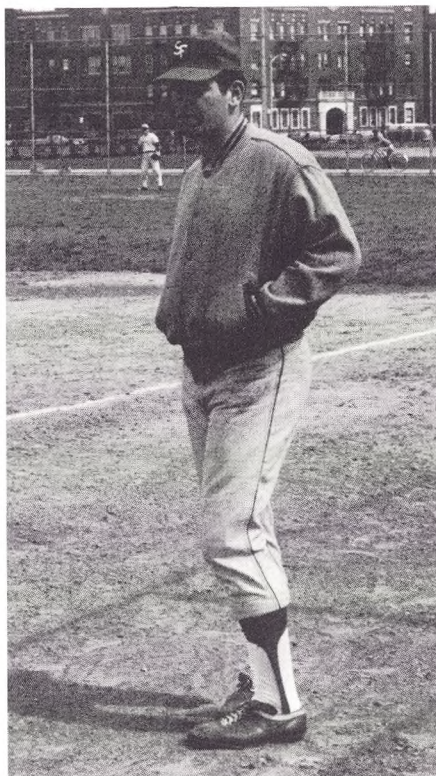

Pitching is the team's strong point. Seniors Pete Scarpati and Doug Smith both are hard-throwing, wily right handers, ERA's of around 1.00 from last season. Sophomore Ed Savold is expected to be the team's third hurler for the extra long season ahead.

Returning starters John Auditore, Bob Alvarez, Chuck Pergola, Rich Aquilina, Bill Lee, Mike Davino and John Nuzzo provide Coach McElroy with a sound basis for optimism. The outlook is brightened further by the addition of standout sophomores Jack Sheedy, George Pinero, Dan Lynch, John Vozab and Tony Criscuola.

John Deus' speed gets him on base again.

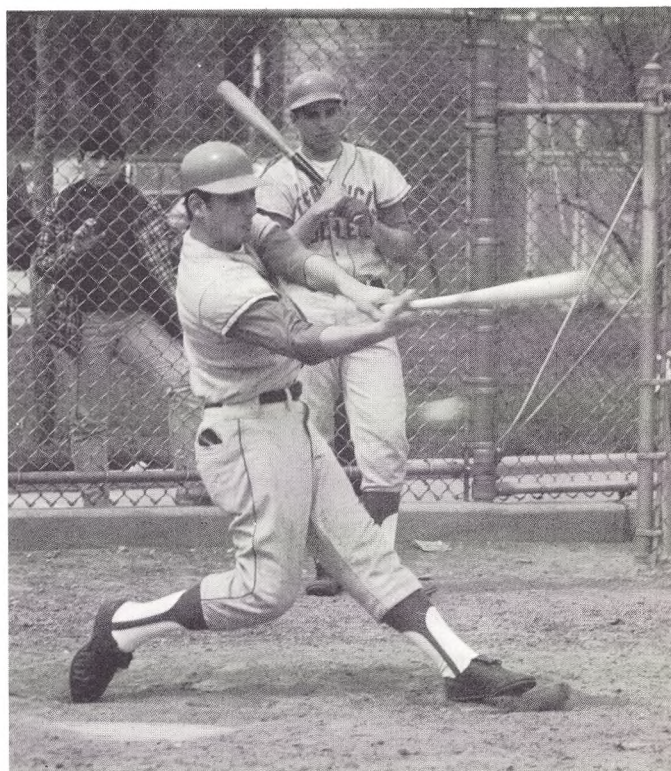

Fran DelMonaco excitedly waves another runner around.

Jim Cobb starts off another St. Francis rally with a hit to center.

Try coughing Doug.

Mike Davino: a study in form.
