Quiet, pensive, and unassuming, Henry's undergraduate career although unspectacular, has been profitable to himself and his associates, who have found in him a good student and a loyal friend. His dry, unaffected humor and his ever present calm disposition have often brightened many an otherwise boring discussion, both in and out of class, and more than once kept others from "blowing their tops" when talk became heated. Henry expects to do graduate work in Chemistry, and those of us who have been with him for four years know that these fine qualities will be an indispensable asset to him in all his future undertakings.

"Cos" is one of the school's most amiable smiling students. He enjoys not only being a student of high standing, in the eyes of the Dean, but also upholding his social prestige among his classmates. "The man in grey", Cos is one of our dappers, especially in his choice silk ties. He is known as Father Sutherland's right hand man. . . . "Sorry I have a date tonight". The possessor of a remarkable memory. . . . Attended Fordham at night. "Boy, are those girls smart up there." . . . Brother Finbarr's ace bookstore booster. . . . Also an authority on hazing. . . . His daily tete-a-tetes with Prof. Fiorenza are done with a purpose. . . . "Cos" is also getting the angles on the teaching racket. . . .
