Reflection

Before starting college, I was told that these four years would fly by all too quickly and that I should enjoy my time to the fullest. I did not believe that person, but here I am in my senior year and graduating. It seems like only yesterday I entered Saint Francis College for the first time as a timid freshman.

SFC has given me the opportunity to truly grow as an individual through the guidance of the faculty and through the close friendships that I have gained. I must thank the amazing professors that I have had; each of you has taught me more than the simple curriculum. You have all made a significant impact on my education and have taught me how to succeed. One of the best aspects of SFC is that we are such a small school. I know I could not have gotten the personal attention and genuine care anywhere else.

The bonds of friendship that I have developed among my peers over these past four years will last a lifetime. Whether it was hanging out in the lounge between classes, attending school functions, or just walking to the train together after a long day of classes, those memories will always stay with me.

My time at SFC will always hold a special place in my heart and I hope that all of the future classes will enjoy their experience to the fullest- after all, it goes by faster than you could imagine!

Reflection

another four years of education and friendship, which will stay in my heart forever. This is a special place, which fosters its students to become a unique community. The Franciscan ideals and traditions are what make this college what it is. The “philos,” which is experienced each day is unmatched anywhere else. In this building is a group of students and faculty, who truly love each other. Whenever you walk the halls, it is hard to not see a parade of people you do not know. Our extended, Franciscan family makes each day special. A smile on the escalator changes a bad day into a good day. The lounge is filled with people swapping stories, ideas, setting up club events; and just bringing us all closer together.

This is more than a school. God has enrolled us all into a community of hope, charity, and friendship. I can only pray that more people will seek Saint Francis College for higher education as the first steps into an ongoing, life journey of growth and success.

I was not looking forward to leaving my High School at all. I had four very wonderful years there and I knew it would be hard for any college to live up to that. Saint Francis College was up to the challenge. It has given me
