

Joe Svirida, defenseman.

Ed Peters, forward.

Senior Larry Lynch, forward.

In the competition for the A.A.U. Junior National Championship, Tim Stafford, Tom Murphy, and Ed Mikos led the hatching of an inexperienced Bishop Loughlin combo, 10-4. Harris, Peters, and Svirida spearheaded winning efforts over Texas A. & M., the West Point plebes, R.P.I., and a tough New York Athletic Club team. In the sixth game, St. Francis defeated the Army Varsity, 8-4, and annexed the Junior National title.

After the tournament, four members of the team, Charlie Harris, Don McQuade, Ed Peters and Joe Svirida, took part in international competition as part of the N.Y.A.C. team which won the North American title trophy by playing Toronto to a 4-4 tie. Charlie Harris received a nomination as a candidate for the All-American team.

During the Fall, taking time out from constant practice, the Terriers played one game, defeating the Air Force Academy, 21-5.

Riflemen Organize

Despite the many setbacks, the campus gunmen suffered at the hands of their opponents during their first year of intercollegiate competition the team has gelled into a solid organization. To date, the team has participated in six matches, three by mail and three, shoulder to shoulder. The results show one victory over Pace College and five losses to such teams as West Point, Fordham and Brooklyn Polytech.

Brother Conrad, the team moderator, and Dennis Kennedy, Marine Reservist, supervised the team's practice and secured team membership in the newly-formed Metropolitan Intercollegiate Rifle League. The practice sessions were held at the Marine Corps Training Center at 22 Chapel Street on Monday and Friday from 2:00 to 7:00 P.M. Brother Conrad instructed some thirty members as they regularly fired 35 rounds from the prone, sitting and standing positions. The team's armament was increased and improved this year with the addition of two Anshultz rifles. Team members have received individual recognition including medals, pins, patches, and certificates from the National Rifle Association to which they are an affiliate.

Other activities included a guest lecturer who compared the new M-14 rifle to the M-1 and Browning Automatic Rifle, and an interesting film tracing the development of Rich Randall rereacks weapon.

Bob Jankesh preps ammo block.

Bill Donohue squeezes one off.

John Perro clears Anshultz.

Morris and Sullivan at dirty work.

Jim Hyland checks target scope.