

JUNIOR

Jack Murphy moved rapidly to be promoted to the post of Associate Editor on "The Voice" while Joe Brachochi and Bill McGuire held important jobs in the sports and news staffs.

To substantiate the contention that Juniors were active, Al Paganini, Vin Gallagher, Bob Kirwin, Frank Gwiazda, and Jack Murphy took part in the college production "You Can't Take It With You."

With Bob Kirwin, last year's winner of the Oratorical Contest, acting as Chairman, Tom Mulrine and Vinny Gallagher felt quite at home as finalists in the 1940 contest. Duns Scotus honored Bob Kirwin and Vin Gallagher by accepting them into the honor society.

Not satisfied to remain within the confines of the school, Jack Murphy and Bill McGuire made their mark as representatives of the college at inter-collegiate conventions.

A year replete in activities that spread to all fields—record of '41!

SOPHOMORE

AS one looks back on the achievements of the Sophomore class during the past year, he will find much that added to the prestige of the group and the college. September found the class of embryonic sophomores prepared to meet whatever difficulties they might encounter during the new scholastic year.

The first activity engaging their attention was the disciplining of the new Freshmen. After a few hectic weeks, the hostilities culminated in the Soph-Frosh rush and basketball game. Each group emerged victorious in one of these events—the Sophs winning the ball game, and the Frosh winning the rush. The hatcheter was completely buried in the annual dance tended to the newcomers by the second year men. The affair, typically Franciscan was a complete social and financial success.

More serious thoughts occupied the time of the
