

less underdog and emerged victorious by a margin of 31 points. Also in this contest George Lindemann set the season record for individual scoring for the Terriers with 22 points—six field goals and ten foul shots. Incidentally, this Loyola team was the first team to make the high-flying Seton Hall quintet bite the dust.

The favorite pastime of the Terriers this past season was to hold down high scorers. During the campaign the Friars came up against such men as Jim Lacey of Loyola, Johnny Mills of Hofstra, and Tony Karpowich of Fordham. Of the above mentioned trio, the first two finished rated among the top five in the nation. Lacey had an average for the season of twenty points per game, but Zeitler held him to 14, the lowest night he had all season. Johnny Mills had two very meager scoring sprees against the basketweavers of St. Francis. He dropped in 34 points in the two games with the Red and Blue. Of those 34 points only 22 were gathered via the field goal route. The best job of stopping a high scorer was turned in by Emil Mele when he held Karpowich of Fordham to two foul shots for a grand total of 2 points. For Karpowich this was a bitter pill to swallow. Tony had become accustomed to scoring at least 15 markers per game.

The Friars lost six games during the season, but never once were they out-fought while on the court.
