Philosophy . . .

Within the framework of the teachings of the Church and in the light of the personal reality of Christ, Christian Philosophy investigates the meanings, purposes, and values inherent in the natural world. Through its endeavor to cultivate the growth of a philosophizing mind rather than a mere conceptual directory, true Philosophy can be of real and vital assistance to the Catholic student and graduate by developing within him a unique faculty, organic to the intellect itself. Not having memorized, sound principles of thought cannot be forgotten; they will inevitably assist the thinking Christian to achieve his natural and supernatural ends by providing for a flexible yet secure core to the life of the mind. It is the specific aim of the Department; therefore, to develop philosophically "thought-minded" Catholics, able to discern philosophical error but unafraid of any truth.

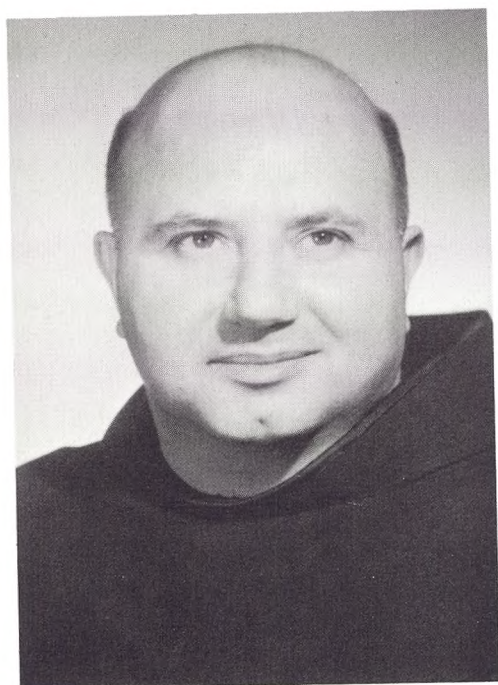

The Psychology Major is designed primarily to produce a well-rounded student whose training has been such as to meet the existing requirements of most graduate schools. In order to implement this goal the Psychology Department concentrates on providing a strong foundation in the basic courses necessary for continued study, while also offering a wide selection of electives which will allow the student to pursue additional areas of interest.

The purpose of the course in Theology is twofold. First, the aim of these courses is to impart a clear and comprehensive knowledge of Catholic dogmatic and moral teachings; and secondly, to stress the necessity of Christian living and Christian leadership in today's society.
