

FULTON SHEEN'S

PREFACE

to

RELIGION

In this masterful presentation of Catholic philosophy, Monsignor Fulton Sheen wages war against America's greatest enemy—Hate. It is natural to hear him suggest love as a curative for worldly ills, and in this case our author's theme is love of God and of neighbor as the all-important remedy for the world's tremendous problem of unhappiness and restlessness.

The book is attractive in style and will be enjoyed by every class of people. Catholics, Protestants and Jews will find it thought provoking and interesting; whereas, floundering souls will find the answer to the problem disturbing the minds of rich and poor alike. "Why are people unhappy?" is not only solved but explained in simple and refreshing terms. No one can read this book without rediscovering himself, and will, in due time, find that many seemingly insurmountable difficulties are in reality not such dreadful obstacles and may be easily overcome.
