

The highlight of the season was the concert with Georgian Court. The long planning was well worth it for it allowed both groups to enjoy the day without being plagued by last minute details. Early on the twelfth of March, they set up the shells and lights as well as getting the lounge cleaned and decorated. At about noon, the buses arrived with the girls, all carrying suitcases and makeup bags. Once they warmed up from the cold March day, they were shown to where they could change. Later, they had coffee and cake and then went into their individual rehearsals. After another break for coffee, they had their general rehearsal. This completed, they went up to the seventh floor for a complete dinner, which was being served by the caterers. It was an atmosphere of combined nervous apprehension before a performance and a one of friendship. This was their first chance to rest since the early morning. After dinner, the concert was given to a packed house. Cheers of "Bravo" could be heard, although Jack McGreevey said it sounded more like, "Let's go!" When the performance was ended, the chairs were pushed back and Glee Club A Go Go began. This was a dance for the combined clubs and for the audience. The evening broke up early the next morning. It was a great success.

There were other concerts, including the one in the Spring to commemorate the Centennial Anniversary of Prospect Park. This was a particularly high honor since the invitation came from the Honorable Abe Stark, Borough President of Brooklyn.

Jack McGreevey, this year's President, said that this was the most successful year thus far. He continued to say that the Glee Club is more like the voice of the college speaking to the surrounding community. No amount of advertising or publicity can do the good that the Glee Club can through its personal contact with the public. It is here that others become aware of St. Francis and of what the men of St. Francis are like. We make friends.

At the end of the year, there is a party at the Sky Room of the Hotel St. George for all the members. There's a hot buffet and all one can drink. It is here that those who are soon to leave feel both happy and sad. They will never sing again with the S.F.C. once they leave.

Professor Nicholas A. Fiorenza

R. Tarpey, P. Le Gullio, J. Hill, L. Ryan.

Business Club

Jeff Gould, Secretary; Ray Curran, President; Dr. Charles Savage, Moderator; Bob Snyder, Vice-President; George Pipino, S.A.C. Representative.

Ray Curran, President of the Business Club.

The Business Club of St. Francis College will close one of its most busiest years this June for both the Officers and the Membership. In April of 1965 the Members had elected Ray Curran, Bob Snyder, Jeff Gould, Bill Hunt, and Sal Salibello as President, Vice-President, Secretary, Treasurer, and Historian respectively. Club preparations for the 1965-1966 academic year were begun in the summer of 1965. The result was lectures, articles, dances, discussions—and in great dosages as any business student will readily testify.

The Club set up a series of six lectures covering the various phases of Accounting, Management, and Economics. There was also a lecture given primarily for seniors on "The Interview Technique" by Mr. James J. Dixon of the Guidance Department. Although it was difficult going at the beginning, student reaction to the Club's first speakers was positive and the show, or rather, the lectures, was on the road.

Club members were exposed not only to lectures but panels and discussions as well. An Accounting panel was scheduled for the New Year. It covered the public, private and government phases of Accounting, and even Mike Quill couldn't stop us. A report on the Senior Accounting Internship was another informative feature.