

To the graduating class of 1989:
We have just reached the first stop on the trip to success. The years that will now follow are dependent upon our achievements and goals established in college. If we could only remember one thing from Saint Francis College, let it be the high moral standard we set for ourselves then, and perpetuate them throughout our lives. Understanding the value of hard work at Saint Francis will ensure that each of us has a greater opportunity to accomplish our goals without ever violating our sense of morality. I wish you great success in all your future endeavors and I am certain that the graduates of 1989 will continue their strive for excellence and never settle for second best.

God Bless You,
Spencer D. Colgan
