

Psychology

The Psychology Club, since its founding in 1966, has proven to be one of the most active organizations on campus. The purpose of the club is to stimulate all those who are interested in subjects and areas not formally presented in class. The Psychology Club through lectures, field trips, discussions, films, and demonstrations attempts to bridge the gap between theory and practice, and student and faculty. Membership and participation are open to the student body at large. Functions are geared to the general understanding of human behavior, appealing to the entire academic community. It is hoped that through the efforts of the Psychology Club an atmosphere of awareness and sensitivity to the human condition will be affected.

Economics

The Economics Society began the year continuing its traditional function of assisting the graduating seniors in their aspirations toward graduate school and employment. Since its introduction to the St. Francis Community the Economics Society's ultimate goal has been to foster a better understanding of economics and its current developments. To further this end the society has tried a new approach. The Economics Society began to gather information for the promotion of a new, more prominent lecture series. It had its work cut out, trying to allocate its limited funds properly for the program.
