

NAVAL RESERVE: Some sea-borne Terriers are instructed in the fine points of ship's rigging by Chief Moraglia of the 379 Division, U.S.N.R. Left-to-right: Ray Miller, Richard Di Benedetto, Seaman Sweeney.

THIRD ORDER: Life profession in the Third Order Secular of St. Francis is conferred on John McCormack.

PRESS CLUB: Jim Duffy, Charlie O'Neil, Pat Walsh, Mike Martini, Ken Vellon.

tice develop the basic skills which make a sea faring man. Naval history, weapons and equipment technology, and sea-going jargon constitute the three R's of their education.

Control of Third Order Goes to Undergrads

Alumni are fine people but Alumni tend to lose contact with the student body. Moreover, a student group controlled by Alumni often becomes too removed from the realities of college life to be effective. In order to eliminate such hindrances from the St. Francis Chapter of the Third Order Secular, Moderator Brother Anthelm appointed matriculating students to offices formerly held by Alumni.

The shakeup resulted in a re-vitalization of the fraternity's program. Activities included a Communion brunch, three dialogues, and the celebratin of the Divine Liturgy of St. John Chrysostom. Brother Urban, Brother Henry and Mr. Farley were guests of honor at the brunch and Mr. Hashimoto, former faculty member now at Manhattan College, was the main speaker. Theological, ecclesiastical and religious problems were covered in the dialogue series moderated by Mr. Nino Languilli. An English language Byzantine rite mass celebrated in April shed light on the nature of the Eastern Catholic liturgy.

A Rose is a Rose?

The Little World of the Public Relations Office grows larger every day. Symptomatic of the College's new squeaky-clean image is the growth of the P.R. Office which has extended itself to students affairs. One of the most subtle devices yet devised by the people at 166 is the Press Club.

The Press Club, a virtual nonentity before expansion fever hit St. Francis, has developed from a bunch of loyal students clipping favorable stories about the College from newspapers for display on bulletin boards to a more or less subversive bunch of image makers. Members now clip news stories constructed from press releases prepared by their own hands. This, of course, saves them the task of seeking only stories which are geared to the image since all stories now bear the stamp of P.R.

P.R. leaves no sector untouched. The Press Club conducted a workshop for high school students. Journalism tips and St. Francis propaganda were the orders of the day for the open-minded youths. Members have also been known to serve as ushers for dinners at which captains of industry developed pleasant, gastronomic impressions of St. Francis College. Alma mater is progressing rapidly; is growing up to the image. Paper tigers from little P.R. Offices grow.

The Omega dogging road show always gathered crowds to the delight of all but the stars.

Omega Holds First Ball

Having gathered enough moral and fiscal strength to support such an undertaking, Omega Delta Chi held its First Annual Ball at the Manger Vanderbilt and published its first journal in conjunction with the dance.

Under the sober guidance of Chancellor Mike Martini, the frat held a raffle in May, offering the incentive of a basket of cheer to the winning donor. The raffle preceded a beer racket at National Bohemian Hall.

A Communion Breakfast was held in memory of James McGoff. Father Joachim celebrated the Mass and Dr. Flynn spoke on the Lay Apostolate.

Members of Omega Delta Chi were active in publicity work for the Annual St. Francis College Blood Bank Drive. They also participated in the Press Club workshop.

"I thought Leprechauns were a bit more sprightly." Spence Shubert to Danny Nolan.

Svelte Tony (Plaid Stamp Girl) Harper dances a jig.

Wally Cook's lap is a convenient place for Louis (Dopey the Dwarf) Livet to check up on his list of signatures.

