

Terriers Still Eye NIT Berth

St. Francis College of Brooklyn, with a 12-5 record, still believes it has a chance for a bid to the NIT.

After his Terriers had beaten Brooklyn College, 81-67, in a closer contest than the score indicates at the St. Francis Artillery

Terriers Romp

ST. FRANCIS COLLEGE BROOKLYN

"Wait a minute there, you don't want to do that."

"Leave the net boy, they cost money."

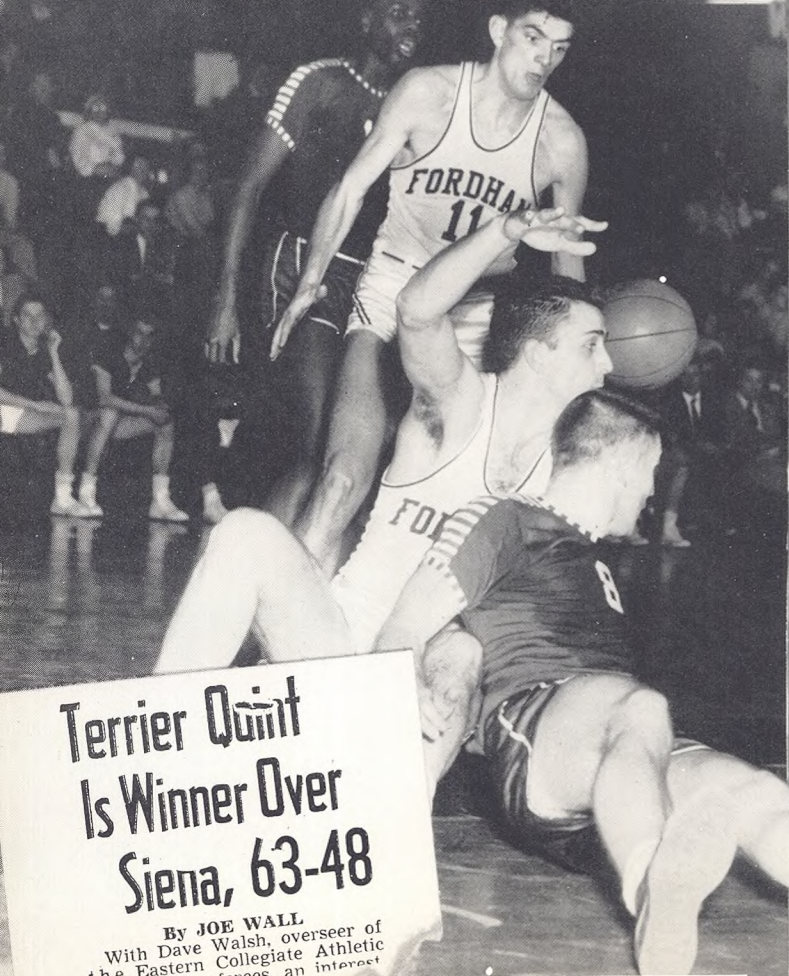

St. John's Savvy Sinks Terriers

By LEONARD COHEN

St. John's experience paid off with an 80-71 victory over St. Francis and the championship of Brooklyn at the Second Corps Artillery Armory Friday night.

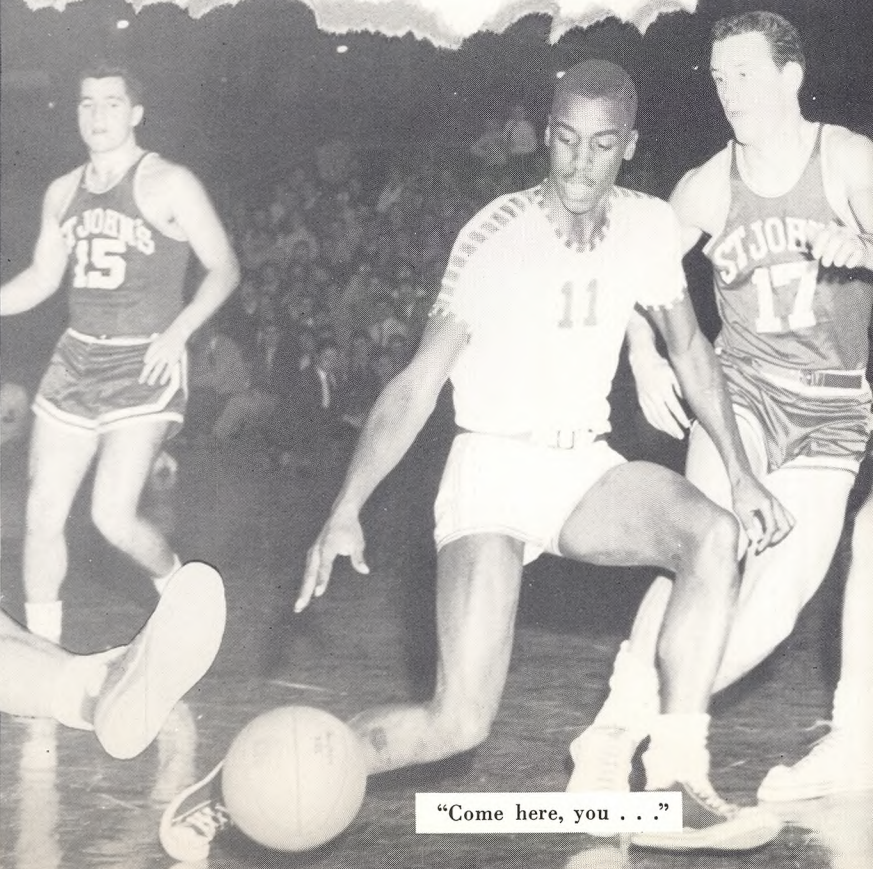

"We waited until we had chances for good shots and fortunately we were hitting," said Coach Dusty DeStefano.

"I'm happy about this win. St. Francis gave us the usual hard

Terrier Quint Is Winner Over Siena, 63-48

By JOE WALL
With Dave Walsh, overseer of the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference referees, an interest

"All hands on deck."

"Come here, you . . ."

BORO CAGER RUINS BROOKLYNITES

St. Francis Fails To Handcuff Conlin

By BEN GOULD

St. Francis College finally dropped its first intra-city basketball game in two years at Fordham last night via a 64-59 decision because Ed Conlin, the giant Ram, was too much. Nevertheless, Coach Danny Lynch had good cause to be cheerful today despite the Terrier defeat. For it was his three brilliant freshmen who almost ruined the game out

"Field goal by Dan Mannix."

They're not as pretty as the Rockettes.

Terriers Belt City

St. Francis of Brooklyn had too many guns for City College last night and the Beavers went down to 94-79 defeat in a basketball game at the

The higher-ups.