

Democratic gubernatorial candidate, Frank O'Connor presents his case before the students.

Professor Paul Adams sought the Governor's chair on the Conservative ticket and outlined his platform for the students in the "Pit".

I.R.C. and Latin American Society Chiefs of Staff conspire on a joint venture.

I.R.C. listens to debate on Civilian Review Board.

Brother Theodore Campbell and Dr. James J. Flynn, Saint Francis College achieved the distinction of being the only school in New York State to have all four candidates.

Adding to this success were the appearances of Member of Congress Hugh Carey and Secretary of State of New York John P. Lomenzo; a debate between two prominent lawyers on the Civilian Review Board issue; a mock election, and club treasurer John Szulwach's appointment to The Post of Member-at-Large in the national IRC.

The Spring program was somewhat less successful. Invitations to Martin Luther King, Jr. and Arthur

Goldberg were extended. However, both were unable to visit the college. However, before semester's end John J. McCloy, member of the Warren Commission and former High Commissioner of Germany, will have addressed the club and the annual High School Convention will have taken place.

The attempt to revitalize the Young Conservatives, Liberals and Democrats was fairly successful. However, participation in the Republican Club, the CCUN and the AIRC was less than desirable.

After that first hectic month both the Moderator and President prophesized that the remainder of the year would be anticlimatic. They were quite correct.