

on long overdue books often had the same thoughts themselves. The vicious circle continued, however, as these fines helped to add even further to the labors of the staff. Indeed, it seemed for them that the only way to end their plight was to become 'Library Lions'.

Thirty minutes before finals and all is not well—obviously.

GUIDANCE AND TESTING FOR OUR FUTURE

Mr. Dixon helped many seniors find future jobs after graduation.

The members of the senior class spent many hours in the seventh floor offices of the Guidance Center this year. Preparation for graduate school, the various national and foreign scholarships and testing for the graduate school examinations took up a great deal of time. For those of us who chose to enter the business life after graduation, interviews were available with many of the largest corporations in the metropolitan area and in many other areas of the nation.

Undergraduates found part-time jobs readily available from an ever-growing file. The sophomores spent a charming Saturday taking special tests in order to test their aptitude in varied fields.

Mr. Thomas Courtney in his first year at the College helped many seniors along the road to graduate school.
