

Club members watch the Boston Symphony Orchestra at the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

Humanities Stalled

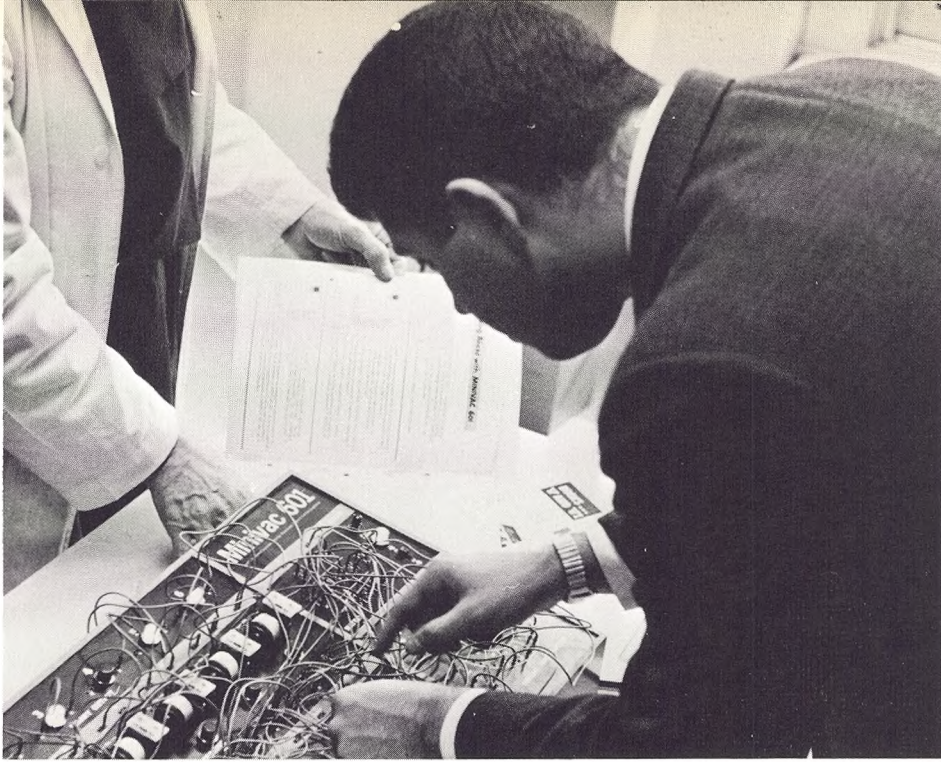

THE Humanities Club staggered through the year. The same traditionally unsuccessful Film Festival was again presented in the same traditionally uncomfortable surroundings. Such films as "A Raisin in the Sun," "Flower Drum Song," and "Anatomy of a Murder," went traditionally, and expensively, unattended. The traditional Art Show was held in the library with the traditional lack of response. The Humanities Division faculty maintained its traditional aloofness.

While the periodic meetings ranged in scope from the scholarship of President Sal Ferraioli's discussion of the siglo d'oro of Spanish literature, to the contemporaneity of Bob Abrami's evaluation of the New York production of The Deputy, the student body's attitude continued to be one of traditional disinterest.

Sal Ferraioli, President, addresses weekly meeting of the Humanities Club. In attendance, Jerry Perillo, Tom Verdini, Brother Camilus, Tom Franza and Charlie Loré.

Charles Loré, Club Secretary over the year, was elected President for 1964-65.

Walter Wood unscrambles wiring on a Minivac 601.

Club members discuss new equipment.

Math Club Fetes Alumni

WITH Richard Randall at the helm, the Math Club relied on tried and true formulae with imaginative innovations in its mathematical activities this year.

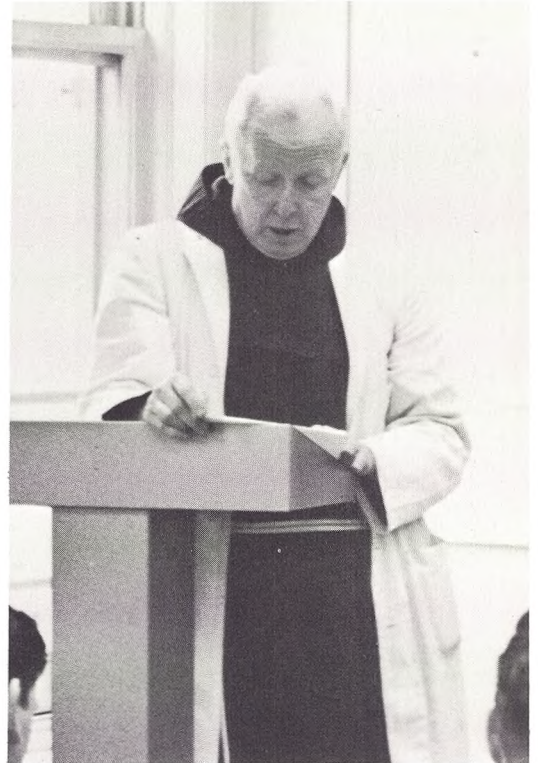

Two "Mathematics Forums," held in conjunction with St. Joseph's College for Women, were added to the Math Club's activities this year. Kenneth Vezdos, Vice President; John Molluzzo, Secretary; Kenneth Duggan, Historian; and Christopher Muller discussed their particular mathematical interests at these assemblies.

These forums led eventually to a series of lectures by the seniors at the weekly meetings of the Math Club.

Another of the year's highlights was the Math Club's "Alumni Night." This meeting gave club members first-hand knowledge about teaching, programming, and actuarial work. St. Francis alumni related some of their personal experiences in these fields and afterwards discussed informally fine points pertinent to the undergraduates. George Kramer, Treasurer, and Walter Wood, Council Representative, played key roles in organizing this particular endeavor.

At the Club's weekly meetings, emphasis was placed primarily on the Comprehensive Problems which are required of each graduating senior. The "Tutoring Program," finding new life, was greeted with enthusiasm and participation.

BROTHER LEO, Club Moderator.

Richard Randall, Club President, demonstrates with a Binary Counter.

