

CYCLIGHTS, Continued

UP FOR A JUMPER over the outstretched hands of a hapless defender, Dave Lopez lofts the ball skyward for two points. Dave's long jump shots made rival coaches simmer and Dan Lynch smile.

"WHERE'S THAT BALL?" Jim Raftery and three Fairfield opponents are "up in the air" over the whereabouts of an elusive rebound. But Jimmy pulled it down and put it back up for another two points for the Terriers.

THE SOCIAL CYCLE IN FULL SWING brought these couples together at the Sophomore Social in St. Thomas Aquinas Hall. Music by the Campus Tones at St. Francis College was a feature of many of the year's outside dances.

IT'S STRICTLY BUSINESS (?) as John Ward discusses yearbook covers with two fellow representatives at the Associated Collegiate Press Convention in Chicago. Dick Flynn and Bill Walsh also attended to mark the first time St. Francis has ever been represented at this annual critique of newspaper and yearbook production by noted authorities in the field of scholastic journalism. 138

LOOKS LIKE FUN for these enthusiastic revelers at the Junior Class Dance in St. Thomas Aquinas Hall. Sharp eyes will spot Mr. McGinniss in the background, talking things over with Richie Dreyer.

FATHER FLEMING'S FAREWELL was a proud but a sad one for St. Francis College. A teacher here for two decades, Father John Fleming was summoned to Rome by His Holiness Pope John XXIII to serve as Spiritual Adviser of the North American College in the Holy City. Here Brother Henry presents him with a token of the love and esteem of all the Franciscans he served so long and so well. Students, faculty and alumni joined to wish him Godspeed at a farewell party in the Monsignor Kelly Lounge.

"WHY, YOU . . ." Frank Loughlin appears slightly perturbed and understandably so, at his frustrated attempt to crack the line during the intramural football playoffs. A comprehensive intramural program under the supervision of Mr. Fazio and Richie Dreyer gave everyone a chance to exhibit his athletic prowess if he so desired.

SOUNDING OFF on a topic of national concern, Roy Cohn, well-known attorney who became a national figure during the McCarthy Senate Hearings, addresses the student body. Mr. Cohn gave a brief but pithy talk and devoted most of his time to answering questions.

THE BIGGEST STORY OF THE YEAR, so big that it will soon become a major cycle of its own, was the purchase by St. Francis of five new buildings on Remsen Street in Downtown Brooklyn from the Brooklyn Union Gas Company. Within a few years, these buildings will house all the Business and Liberal Arts classes, the Administrative offices and the student facilities of St. Francis, while the Butler Street location will be devoted exclusively to Science. The first major step in the Expansion Program, this purchase will allow for increasing diameter in the cycles of St. Francis.
