

SPECIALIZING
dedicated to the significantly to weal. Thus, p
bers of comm
unions, church
in the maco-s
serve in the S
In the life
Club encourag
its lecture pr
parties. The
of student life

knowledge are investigated by the Science and Mathematics Clubs. Publications unite the college community with lines of information and communication.

Perhaps the most tangible of all the signs of community is the Student Council. Through debates and discussions, as well as by its committees and programs, the Council is both the eye of the whirl and tempest of clashing special interest groups, and the stable core of student organization. Here classes, clubs, weightlifters and opera buffs, business and English majors meet under the common banner of St. Francis.