"And we that watch and wait
Breathing with mortal breath,
We are but ships upon that sea
Whose tides are birth and death.

Sailing out of the dark,
O little ships, to the light,
And never too small or frail a bark
To sail to the Infinite!

But what of the storms that hide
In that mystery?
And what of the bitter, ultimate tide
We neither hear nor see?

Be still, O querulous soul!
He hath charted every sea,
And the Master of all the tides that roll
Shall send to pilot thee."
