

Franciscan Week

There is no better time to show your Franciscan spirit than on Franciscan Week! Students and faculty alike came out to celebrate in the name of our patron saint, Francis of Assisi. In the true Franciscan spirit, the SFC community celebrated with different fundraisers and gatherings to give back to our community. As St. Francis gave his life to his community and religion, students came out to donate their time and money at different events. A gathering of Franciscan ideas and the breaking of bread was held in the Gormon Dining Hall to kick off the week with a benefit concert held in Founders Hall featuring many of the SFC local bands for a great night of music and entertainment to bring Franciscan Week to a close.

Celebrating Diversity

Our community at St. Francis College is a mere sampling of one of the diverse populations in the country, if not the world, New York City. Students from all different ethnic backgrounds came out to unite and embrace their cultural differences through song, dance and of course food! In the Gormon Dining Hall, students served each other their different native meals that were common in their cultures in an effort to expose others to that culture and their ways of life. The food, that to some was perfectly normal, was to others very different and truly an experience. It is only through experiencing and embracing these differences that we all truly can understand and coexist with each other.
