

Fear Factor

Modeled after the popular television show, "Fear Factor" is an exciting mini-daredevil experience held here at St. Francis College in the Genovesi Center in conjunction with intramurals. The students participated by eating what most would consider to be very tasty food individually, yet when mixed together become incredibly disgusting. Students were able to beat the odds and truly show school spirit. Students were able to compete for different prizes and just take a break from their stressful class schedules.

Halloween

Tradition is, by far, one the most precious and well remembered facets of life. The annual Halloween celebration is one such tradition held at SFC that students look forward to time and time again. Once again the party was held in the Genovesi Center with a bigger and better audience. Whether they came to dance, meet up with friends or compete for best costume, students had a great time this year. With the music controlled by the school's resident disc jockey Cern Hector, the SFC community celebrated Halloween until the late hours of the night. Students and faculty alike came out for this event showing off their different costume ideas and school spirit. With good food, music and people, students had a chance to unwind and have a good time.
