Mountain Journey

Have you ever looked at a mountain and admired its great height, beauty and strength.

A mountain is an admirable and beautiful creation which can be attacked by climbing or just admired passively by the eye.

In a sense we ourselves have mountains within us.

Each one of us has goals which most probably are different from the next person's.

But nonetheless, these goals are combined to form our own individual mountain which can be either visualized passively or can be attacked by chipping away at obstacles and reaching the peak at our own rate.

While climbing our mountain we should try to attain and live by high standards of which we are proud.

While we were in high school we lived life with a desire to be the best person we thought we could be.

At the end of the four years we decided to continue the climb and so came here to St. Francis.

Four years have gone by ... faster than some of us would like and at the same time too slow for some.

But nonetheless, the fact remains that our days at S.F.C. are at their end ...

Hopefully we have made the best of the time ... Some have made friendships that will last a lifetime ... Others have cried throughout finals only to come out laughing in the end ... And still others have studied until all hours while some have not studied at all ...

While at S.F.C. we have been able to form ourselves as members of a society and have striven to gain the knowledge needed to reach the top of the mountain.

We are all individuals and have therefore reached different levels of success in our fields.

However we are alike since hopefully we have used our failures to better ourselves- We have learned from our mistakes and are ready now to continue our climb.

We are the Class of '80 and even though we leave S.F.C.

We will never really be completely apart from it.

The memories of our days at S.F.C. will always be with us-

Whatever obstacles impede our progressive climb.

Whether they be temporary or prolonged, we will be able to look back and remember similar happenings throughout our days S.F.C.

We have made it this far in our climb and depending upon each one's level of desire we shall strive to reach the peak of our individual and private mountains.
