

THE MENDEL CLUB enjoys the distinction of being the oldest society in the college and has had one of the most active seasons in its history during the past year. Under the guidance of Professor E. F. Corlis, the several groups into which the club is divided are working on Vitamins, Sex Determination, Histology and Comparative Anatomy. Several night meetings have been held and a book of experimental results have crowned this year's activities.

The INDICATOR CLUB has as its purpose the organization of all those particularly interested in Chemistry and its allied sciences. The society has made notable progress in combining social life with scientific procedure. Various guest speakers were guests at the many night meetings at which many phases of industrial and research chemistry were discussed. The club also assisted the National Defense Program by aiding the chemistry majors in filling out a questionnaire designed for the census of scientifically trained men. Most important of all is the attitude of fellowship attained by all the members of the group. This fact just proves that scientists, too, are human.

The revivification of the INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB this year was due to the wholehearted energies of Brother Christopher, the Moderator of the society, and the splendid participation and cooperation of the members of the club. Discussions were held at the various meetings during which the members probed into topics of current history and interest such as the Constitution, Foreign Relations, National Defense, etc. The activities, however, were not confined entirely to the classroom as is readily seen by group participations at the conferences in Lakewood, Washington, and Albany. Through the initiative of William Ferris, the first annual club dinner brought to a close a most successful and highly enjoyable season for the International Relations Club.

OF the various extra-curricular activities in the college, there are four which concern primarily the cultural and educational fields of interest. They are, THE ARTS CLUB, TO KALON K'AGATHON, BURSCHEMCHAFT EDELWEISS and LE CERCLE FRANCOIS. These four organizations create interest in the culture, literature and art of the English, Latin and Greek, German and French peoples respectively.

The ARTS CLUB provides for its members, composed of English majors, a delightful and interesting combination of business and pleasure. The pleasure consists of visits to private art galleries — which are enlivened by remarks made by Professor Schwendeman — and Sunday afternoon concerts at various museums. The business end lies in the preparation and publication of the "ARTS LETTER."

The classical club of the college is fitly known as TO KALON K'AGATHON since it provides ample opportunity for debate and discussion concerning classical topics which supplement the actual courses in the catalogue. Father McKernan makes all the meetings interesting by having reports prepared by the various members on some topic relative to the classics — either Latin or Greek.

Under the genial guidance of Father Beck, BURSCHEMCHAFT EDELWEISS has kept alive the culture of the German nation which is almost being forgotten in the trend of modern events. Father Beck gives many fine lectures on German art, literature and drama. At one of the meetings, he exhibited two of his art treasures which are centuries old and most valuable.

A most popular and active club in the college, LE CERCLE FRANCOIS has become most extensive in its covering of the art, literature and theatre of the French people. Brother Camillus, moderator of the society, has made this club an interesting and enjoyable one for its members. Informal meetings, discussion, and projects characterize this organization.
