

The Third Order

The Third Order is a laymen's order founded by St. Francis of Assisi in order that people in the world may lead a more spiritual life. The members do not take vows, but participate in the numerous graces and benefits accorded by the Church to the Franciscans.

Vocation Club

The Vocation Club at St. Francis College has a two-fold function: one, to serve as a medium of religious activities for the members; and two, to supervise all religious activities of the college with the approval of the Spiritual Director.

National Students Association

The National Students Association is composed of delegates from over 250 colleges throughout the nation. Working through campus committees, regional assemblies and commissions, the organization provides an authoritative voice for responsible student opinion. It offers services in social, economic and cultural endeavors as well as educational opportunities and international study programs.

National Federation of Catholic College Students

The Federation was formed to develop lay Catholic leadership. St. Francis College is represented by a group of students elected at the beginning of each year by the Student Council.
