

The Terrier women swung their rackets more positively this fall, finishing with an 8-4 overall record, a major improvement over last spring's 2-7 finish and 1988's 0-3 campaign. "It took a concerted effort on the team's part," said second year coach Tom Cassidy, a St. Francis alumnus, who also coached Xavier High School to two Mayor's Cup tournaments in the last five years.

The Lady Terriers had some big wins during their season. They dominated conference rival LIU, beating it twice during the season, 5-2 and 4-3; they toppled Adelphi, 7-2; beat Molloy 9-0; and set back Mt. St. Vincent 7-2. The College of S.I. also fell victim to the Lady Terriers, 5-3.

Senior Valerie Waterman finished 8-2 in singles play and 5-7 in doubles. The rest of the team did equally well in both single and double play, showing that great St. Francis spirit and talent. The Lady Terriers finished in eighth place in the Northeast Conference.

Anthony Robinson was also ranked nationally by the NCAA. He was ranked no. 12 in rebounding averaging 11.5 boards after six games. He was the third leading rebounder in the NEC at season's end last year. Robinson was NEC Newcomer of the Week also.
