mortal soul. Every exercise he participated in was aimed at strengthening him to accomplish this difficult task. Mass, Holy Communion, Confession, Spiritual Reading, the Rosary, Stations of the Cross, etc., were his routine for two days and the value of these two days, if spent seriously, would far outlast that of any other job he could undertake because they would stretch into eternity.

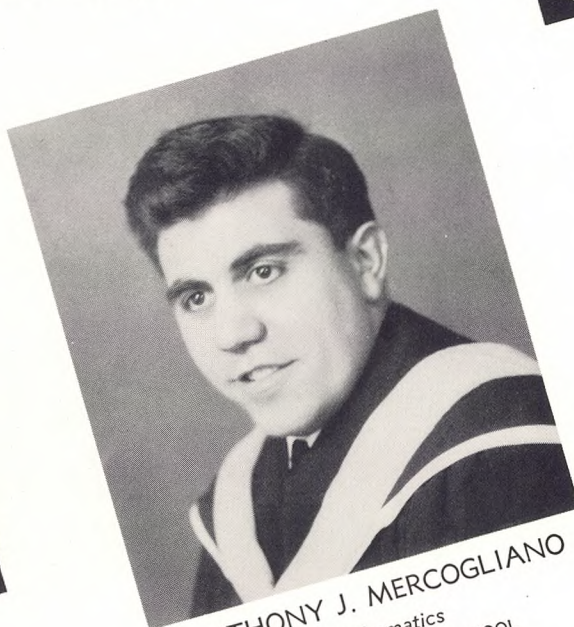

The Seniors did more than just attend a retreat, they participated actively in making their retreat a success. Practically every senior performed some task, such as leading the Rosary, the Stations of the Cross, morning prayers or waiting on tables in the refectory. Each senior on leaving Wednesday night felt much better, for he had lived intimately with God for two days.
