

"ME CHIEF, YOU SQUAW!" Noble Redman Jim O'Kelly copped first prize at Pi Alpha's Hallowe'en Costume Party for his elaborate interpretation of Big Chief Screaming Dissenter. The social cycle culminates for Senior O'Kelly at this year's prom, which he arranged and supervised as Prom Chairman.

FIERCE DETERMINATION to win for St. Francis is evident in the face of Soph Jim Raftery as he battles a Pace opponent for a rebound. In his first year with the Varsity, Raftery led the Terriers in scoring and drew raves from the metropolitan press.

THE CYCLES MOVE in a continuing flow, but in all motion in which the human element is involved, there are high points. These moments, when captured by the camera, serve as a record of the cycles of the year. We believe the photographs in this section show such moments, but we make no claim that they tell the whole story. Missing from these pages are moments that no camera could capture and no picture explain.

In the cycle of studies, the long, dark, silent hours spent at home before the big exam cannot be shown here. The classes themselves, where the students receive and digest the information and opinions of education, we could not presume to invade. Nor are the actual workings of the Administration depicted here; their time is too valuable for us to interrupt. In sports, the biggest moment . . . the winning basket, the home run pitch, the last goal . . . always seems to elude the camera. In activities, the bulk of the work is carried on behind the scenes where the lens cannot penetrate. The religious activities of the student outside school, the moments spent in meditation and quiet conversation with God, are his and his alone.

While this section is an attempt to capture the high points of the year, it is and must remain only an attempt. The motion of the cycles is too deep and too basic to be recorded anywhere but in the memories of those who made them live.

A SMILING IRISHMAN vies for votes at the I.R.C. Political Symposium as Mr. James Martin looks on. Kevin C. Fogarty, Republican candidate for State Senate, addresses the student body at one of the highlights of the political cycle.

ON THE MARCH FOR ERIN, the loyal sons of St. Francis parade their pride for the city to see. The yearly appearance in the St. Patrick's Day Parade is one of the best public examples of Franciscan solidarity.

A BIG MOMENT for St. Francis College came when Senator Barry Goldwater addressed the Student Body in the Monsignor Kelly Lounge. Here the Senator answers questions concerning his views on the political scene. Arranged and moderated by the IRC, the Senator's appearance received nationwide press and television coverage and enlarged the cycle of political activity at St. Francis.

A BIT OF BLARNEY in the form of Irish songs by television personality Ray Heatherton enlivened the Annual Alumni Dinner at the Hotel St. George. It was at this dinner that Brother Urban delivered his much-publicized appraisal of state aid to college students.

"ARE YOU EIGHTEEN?" Senior Class President and Pi Alpha Archon Frank Ferguson checks a legal point at the Senior Social in St. Thomas Aquinas Hall. Unless the papers are in order, this customer will get no service from "refreshment hosts" Joe Crowley and Bernie Morgan.
