

"IT SAYS HERE . . ." Tom Dimler awes Tony Krasnick with his voluminous notes. The frat house provided Pi Alpha with the perfect spot for those final study sessions before exams.

T.V. TIME in the frat house finds George Davey and Frank Avenoso watching Yogi Bear in rapt attention. Ray Nash's thoughts are elsewhere.

"DID YOU HEAR THE ONE . . ." Dom Molignano, Treasurer of Pi Alpha, gets a favorable reaction from frat brother Mike Henning and his date at the fall dance. Dom's persistent pursuit of the brothers behind in their dues kept the frat treasury in good shape.

"OH, YOU THINK IT'S A BIG JOKE, HUH?" Mike Jewell, Social Director of Pi Alpha, lures an unsuspecting "Jolly Green Giant" (Pete Callahan) into a verbal trap. Pi Alpha's fall dogging brought in new members to share the fraternal spirit.

THE GANG'S ALL HERE, or almost all, in this group picture snapped at a stag social. In the front row, left to right, are Simon Pin Ho, Bill Higgins, Joe Carabetta, Jim Crosby, Tony Bulla, Joe Ponessa, Mr. Connell Boyle, Jim Mannix, John Natale, George Boberg, Mike Murray,

Phil Fitzpatrick and Frank Fallon. In the rear from the left are Joe Ryan, Richie Carter, Danny Bryan, Jim Doyle, Bill Barnewold, Sal Messineo, Jim Jones, Harry Martin, Jerry Mastellon, Connie Reitz, Frank Scahill, and Gene McCaul.

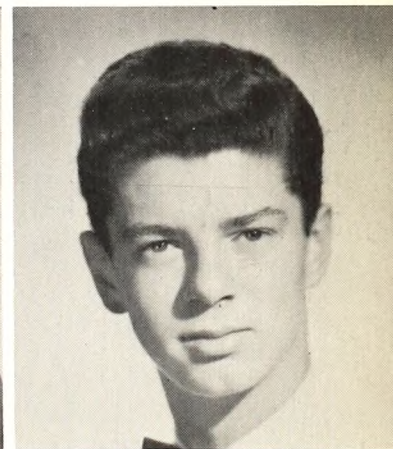

Phi Rho Pi

THE STORY OF THE CYCLE traveled by a group of young men dedicated to a single ideal is the story of Phi Rho Pi Fraternity. This cycle has not been broken in the thirty-seven year history of the frat. The motto, "For God, country and St. Francis" governed the original group of five members; the same words guide the fifty-six men that comprise today's organization. The cycle is filled with many varied activities. Communion breakfasts, toy drives for the needy children of the Brooklyn Diocese, dance and dogging play an important part in the life of the frat brother. The individual frat members may change, but the cycle that is Phi Rho Pi Fraternity continues the same.

SURROUNDED by vengeful dogs, Dave Lopez gets a taste of his own medicine during Fall pledging. Good-natured ribbing from both sides keeps dogging on the proper humorous level.

FRANCIS FALLON
Praetor

JAMES MURRAY
Vice-Praetor

DANCING WITH HIS DATE at the Phi Rho Pi dance, Danny Bryan enjoys the social side of fraternity life.