ology course builds a student in the defense of his faith. The Encyclical Letters course acquaints the student with the letters of the reigning Roman Pontiff. These letters pointed out the evils of the materialistic philosophy now sweeping the world. The Christian Marriage course, vitally important to a Catholic student, enlightens them on the real spiritual dignity of the conjugal union and its heavenly bond. It stresses the real purpose of marriage; namely the procreation of children and their education. The Catholic Action course rounds out the Religion Department at the college. It stresses the practicable measures for bringing the Catholic way of life to others.

The Bazaar

It was toward the end of 1950 that, for the first time the Franciscan Brothers issued an appeal to obtain financial assistance for the acquisition of a new monastery. The phrase; "Hi Brother, help a brother get a home", was seen throughout the city from newspapers to subway stations. It was this slogan that was the instigating force in bringing the dream of a financial success to an actuality.

The highlight of this fund raising campaign was the bazaar held during the early part of October at the Second Corps Artillery Armory. Members of the College and many of the Brothers sweated out the four evenings vending food and soft drinks. Students who were not needed for this service were assigned elsewhere. Some were attached to the merchandising committee. Other college students were posted at the various field games. The approximate profit was about $35,000.
